

Sector Training Tamworth FLPN 27th & 28th April 2017

DAY ONE

Understanding how attachment, childhood trauma, neuroscience and masculine socialization impact on men dealing with high conflict and separation/divorce.

Tools and strategies to help men seeking assistance for emotional regulation and reducing family conflict.

Practitioner skills to engage and work with men in high conflict or with emotional regulation difficulties.

DAY TWO

Workplace awareness: being aware of what we bring to the table, and how our work impacts upon us.

Looking at the broader impacts of working in this sector, and how that can benefit or hinder our professional processes.

WHEN: 27th & 28th April 2017
9.30am — 4pm (3.30pm on 28th)

VENUE: Centacare NENW
201 Marius St, Tamworth

COST: $82.50 incl GST—includes 2 days training, lunch and refreshments

RSVP: 13th April 2017
Joanna—FLPN Project Officer
j.birtles@centacarenenw.com.au

Numbers capped at 75 attendees

 Please complete registration form on the next page ***

(Continuing professional education points may apply)

Tamworth Family Law Pathways Network invites people working in, and alongside, the family law sector to attend our next training event with Simon Santosha

Working with men who have difficulty regulating their emotions

About your trainer:

Simon Santosha is the Managing Director of Men & Family Counselling and Consultancy on the Gold Coast. Registered Mental Health Social Worker and Clinical Member of the Australian College of Social Workers.

Simon has more than 18 years of clinical experience working with children, young people, men, women and families dealing with complex trauma, mental health issues and family relationship issues. He is a highly qualified and experienced clinical counsellor, who has specialist expertise in working with men and families who are dealing with relationship conflict, separation, divorce and co-parenting.

Simon has completed extensive training in attachment, trauma and relational neuroscience and has integrated these into his therapeutic work with clients and training programs with family relationship and mental health practitioners, educators and organisational leaders.

His ability to inspire and motivate people to think differently, challenge their thoughts and behaviours and encourage debate has made him a popular presenter and workshop facilitator. He has presented at various state and national conferences and delivered professional development training to a range of government, non-government, private sector, community welfare agencies, schools and communities throughout Australia. He has appeared on ABC's Q&A program as a panellist and is often a spokesperson for men and family relationships issues in the media.

Simon has worked with individuals, communities and organisations from all backgrounds throughout Australia and it's this vast experience, combined with his passion for helping men and families improve their relationships that make him a dynamic and engaging speaker.

Australian Government

Family Law
PATHWAYS NETWORK

TAMWORTH

